BAPTIST CHURCH ORGANIZED AT EKRON; FIRST IN THE HISTORY OF THE TOWN.

A council composed of the following met at Ekron last Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a Baptist church: J. N. Neffs, George Neffs, Salem church; Rev. S. H. Tabb, Rev. J. T. Williams, Rev. E. S. Dowell, Rev. Jake Burger, Rev. S. P. Sanders, Buck Grove church; Richard Willett, Noah Hicks, Hill Grove church; Rev. J. J. Willett and Rev. J. M. Hickerson, Brandenburg church. The following visiting ministers also were present: Rev. W. H. Bruner, Brandenburg; Rev. W. H. Setzer, Stephensburg; and Rev. J. G. Bow, Louisville.

Dr. Bow was called to the chair and Rev. Tabb was elected clerk. Dr. Bow preached a sermon, and then the meeting adjourned to dinner. The evening session opened at 7 o'clock with the song, "All Hail the Power," which was followed with prayer by Rev. Bruner. Letters for admission to the new church were presented by the following: Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Shacklett, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Shacklett, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Cox, Mrs. Fannie Frymire, Miss Cora Dowell, Frank Wright, Mrs. Bettie Richardson, Mrs. Mattie Shacklett, Miss Maud Payne, Miss L. Lee Payne, Mrs. Helle Shacklett.

The council received the letters and proceeded to the organization of the church. The clerk read the covenant which is published below. Rev. Willett moved that the covenant was sound and suitable and that it be adopted, which was done.

The articles of faith were read by the clerk and pronounced sound and scriptural by Rev. Bruner, who moved their adoption.

"How Firm a Foundation ye Saints of the Lord" was sung while the members of other churches present extended the right hand of fellowship to the members of the new church.

Rev. J. J. Willett delivered the charge to the church. Rev. Tabb followed with prayer. The council having accomplished its work, now adjourned.

B. B. Shacklett suggested that the church be called the Ekron Baptist church and Z. T. Cox suggested that it be called the shacklett Memorial Baptist church. Mr. Shacklett's suggestion met with the approval of the members and the new church will be known as the Ekron Baptist church.

The election of a pastor and officers was the next order of business. The vote was taken by secret ballot and resulted in the election of Rev. Dan Shacklett as pastor, Z. T. Cox as clerk and B. B. Shacklett, Thos. Payne and B. W. Shacklett deacons. The meeting adjourned then to meet on the fourth Saturday in July.

The meeting was held in the mill house of D. S. Childs, and all those present were much interested in its proceedings. An excellent dinner was served on the grounds.

Mr. Cox donated the ground for the new church building and $100 toward its construction. Other members were liberal in their donations.

Ekron is fifteen years old and this is the first church that has been organized there.

CHURCH COVENANT.

Thanking God for the light we have received, and for the revelation of Jesus which we enjoy, and hoping that God, for Christ's sake has pardoned our sins, and having been baptized on a profession of faith in Christ Jesus into the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we do, this day, before God and the world, with deep joy and great solemnity, enter into covenant with one another as one body in Christ.

We therefore covenant and agree, that by the aid of the Holy Spirit, we will walk together in love and Christian fellowship. We promise to labor for the advancement and final triumph of the church, to sustain her worship by attending the house of God and supporting the ministry to guard her ordinances, enforce her discipline, and defend her doctrine.

We also pledge ourselves to walk circumspectly in the world, to be honest, just and faithful in our business relations; and, as God may give us help, we promise to live righteous and holy lives.

We further promise, to watch over each other in brotherly love, to visit the sick, to pray for each other and the world; to aid the poor and needy, and to perform such other kind offices as may be well pleasing in the sight of God.

ARTICLES OF FAITH.

1. We believe in the Holy Bible, written by men divinely inspired, and full of unimpaired truth, as our sole authority and rule of life.

2. We believe in one God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

3. We believe that man once holy, fell by voluntary transgression from that happy state, and is now utterly roiled of holiness.

We believe that sinners are saved by grace alone.

4. We believe that men are justified by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

5. We believe that salvation is free to all who will accept the gospel.

6. We believe that, except that a man be renewed by the Holy Spirit, he is not qualified or prepared for the Kingdom of Christ on earth, or to enjoy his glory hereafter.

7. We believe that repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ are the duties of every one who hears the gospel.

8. We believe that election is the eternal purpose of God, by which he graciously regenerates, sanctifies and saves sinners.

9. We believe that sanctification, or holiness, is the process by which we are made to partake of God's DEDICATED SUNDAY.

The handsome new M. E. church, South, at Glendene, was dedicated Sunday by Dr. J. J. Tigert, of Nashville, in the presence of people from all parts of the country. The dedicatory services were interesting and spiritually and intellectually enjoyed by the good crowd present, which was served with a basket dinner by the hospitable people of Glendene. Arrangements were made for special train service over the branch, made it very convenient for all those who attended from neighboring towns.

The Glendene Methodist church is a credit to the town. Though the membership was at first small, the good work was pushed forward and they now have a neat, up-to-date church. Enough money was raised at the dedication Sunday to pay off the small debt remaining on the building.

Short Talks on Advertising
By Charles Austin Bates

If any article has any value or utility at all it can be sold by telling people know about it. It is a mere question of price and of telling enough people.

A good demonstration of this fact is given by the street "fak-ers" in the lower part of New York. On Park Row, Fulton and Ann Streets are hundreds of these men with push carts. They sell everything conceivable, from shoeblacking to books. The goods are displayed on the cart and thousands of passers-by see them. Maybe not one in a hundred buys, but somebody does, because each day you will see some new thing on the carts.

Habits and Faces.

BY CHRISTINE TERRINE HERRICK.

Copyright, 1904, by Christine Terrine Herrick.

The outdoor life, no less than the indoor life, is bound to leave its mark on a woman's face and bearing.

By this I don't refer only to the effect of wind and sun on the complexion or of fresh air on the general health. I mean as well that the occupation to which one most devotes oneself will in time alter the expression of the countenance. Recognizing this, it behooves the woman who takes up any outdoor sport to avoid the snarls connected with such a sport. It is not long since the papers were full of what was known as the "bicycle face." There was no necessity for describing it. We all knew it as soon as we saw it. An eager, anxious look, a straining forward look, sometimes an expression almost of terror,—it did not make a pleasant impression upon anyone who saw it. The bicycle face was not the property of women alone. Men had it, too, but oddly enough, it was seldom seen on children. They, bless their hearts! were too busy enjoying their wheels to have any powers to waste on worrying about anything.

That the bicycle face was not a necessary accompaniment of wheeling was proved by the fact that it was not universal. More than that, it was usually to be seen upon the unaccustomed and timid rider. This was perhaps, natural, but when the transient expression was permitted to become permanent, it was either the result of carelessness or of a lack of appreciation of the effect even a passing mood may have on the features if the mood is repeated frequently enough.

Perhaps it is a matter of course that when a timid person learns to ride a wheel the lack of self-confidence should for time being show in the face, but this lack of self-confidence is not an abiding thing. Unfortunately, however, the look sometimes is. One can see that in other than outdoor pursuits. Facial traits are easily acquired, and even when recognized are hard to shake off. They are worse when their owner fails to know they are in existence. I was amused one evening to observe the expressions of the faces of several persons who were sitting about a room engaged in various pursuits. At one side of the room an elderly man was writing. All the while the pen moved his lips moved also,—not repeating the words he was writing, but twitching back and forth in a measured fashion, as if the thoughts of the brain had their counterpart in the movements of the lips. Another member of the family read a book in which she was deeply interested and the play of the author's fancy was indicated by the motions of the reader's eyebrows. When there was something a little unusual, or amusing, the brows went up almost into the hair, when there was pathos or matter for indignation the brows were drawn together. It was no wonder that the forehead was a mass of creases, longitudinal and vertical. Next to the reader sat her sister crocheting. I found out what the needle and every time the book drew the wool through a loop the lips were pursed up. While the mother of the girls who were sewing, snipped her eyes energetically with every stitch she set.

Perhaps this may seem an exaggeration, but let any one who questions the possibility of such a set of expressions in one household take the pains to give a little study to the facial tricks of those about her. Possibly the group I mentioned may have had especially mobile countenances, but there are plenty of others. When we see this sort of thing provoked by ordinary indoor avocations, is it any wonder that a more exciting pursuit leaves its mark on the face?

While bicycling was one of the first sports to receive the honor of having an expression named after it, other sports have followed. In its wake, I do not refer now to the expressions gained by athletes. The look of the football or the baseball player, may, like other occupations, have a whole range of expressions of its own. And there are other outdoor ways of life that leave their mark,—a mark that is not objectionable. We know the gaze of the sailor or of the man accustomed to looking off over wide spaces of prairie. There is nothing unpleasant about these. It is when the bicycle face means a set look of anxiety or of peevishness, when the fixing with the eye of the nose to which the ball must be driven, means the golf squint, when the long stride across the links has produced the slouching ungainly gait which has been dubbed the golf walk, that it becomes necessary to give the subject of these idiosyncrasies some serious consideration.

There can be no good thing without the defects of its qualities. Our care must be not to let the defects outweigh the qualities or to permit a really admirable thing to do us harm as well as good. Take bicycling, for instance,

The wheel may have seemed to lose its popularity for a brief time, but it has come back to stay,—not, as some one says, as a fad, but as a homely custom. The day has probably gone by when people go bicycle mad,—although when one sees the wheels of the present day one can pardon an occasional attack of mania,—but the time has arrived when the bicycle is a matter of course, not only for getting about the country on errands and the like, but also as a factor in developing a higher physical standard. Anything that will make stronger hearts, that will stimulate torpid organs and clear the brain is bound to have the support of thinking people everywhere. A horse or an automobile may take one about and awaken a love of outdoors, but a horse or an automobile is not within the reach of persons of moderate means. Therefore the wheel possesses advantages for the every day man and woman that can be offered by no other means of locomotion.

So good a thing as this should not sink into condemnation because those who use it are too weak or too careless to conquer the few drawbacks connected with it. There is no reason why a bicycle should be the cause of a bowed, hunched-up back or of an unpleasant countenance, if its riders will pay as much attention to their attitudes and their expression as they do to the costumes they wear when riding. The case is the same with golf, "the royal game." More and more it grows in popularity. The business man finds in it an outdoor sport which gives him exercise and amusement at the same time, and the girl who plays golf has become a recognized feature in our social outdoor life. The game is worthy of all commendation and is doing the work of a life saving station for men who could never before be coaxed from their offices during the daylight hours. But is it to leave an unsightly mark upon those who partake of its benefits? Shall that which is admirable on the golf course be transported to the street and the drawing room? Shall the half closed eyes which seem the space to be covered in the next drive be fixed upon one's vis-a-vis at the dinner table? Shall our girls and men take their afternoon stroll or their promenade to church with long slouching steps, dropped shoulders and swinging arms. The pose that is acquired by slouching the bag of golf clubs or by posing oneself for the drive is out of place except on the links.

Yet if one must choose between these and the dispirited droop of mouth and shoulders that are found among the women who live the stay-at-home life and know nothing of the joys of free exercise in the open air, let us, for the love of mercy, have anything that the bicycles or the automobiles or golf or tennis can give us. The one, at least, is a sign of a healthful mode of life, however much we may deprecate the form it takes. But why should one have either?

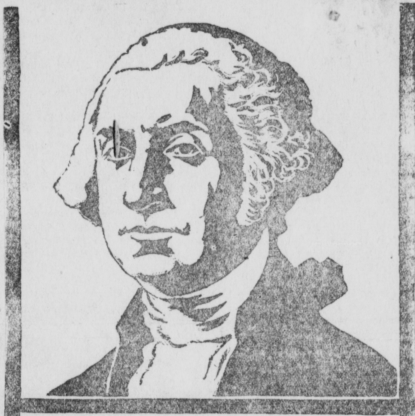

Already I have tried to indicate in these papers that one need not sacrifice a complexion in order to win proficiency in outdoor sports. The small amount of care that is given to the skin will keep it in tolerable order and the attention that is bestowed upon the expression will not be thrown away. Only recently have our women come to appreciate all that fresh air and systematic exercise will do for their health and looks. There are still too many of them who neglect all these things and are content to lose attractiveness and youth and strength sooner than take the pains to go out of doors. It would make matters infinitely worse if those who have been converted to the gospel of exercise and oxygen should do their own harm by displaying expressions and habits which prejudice the stay-at-homes against the pursuits to which they should be won.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers are small, easy to take, easy and gentle in effect, yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. The Lemon as Medicine. The value of lemons in the treatment of both rheumatism and consumption is now known to be very great. The treatment is to begin with one or two a day and gradually increase the number. In one case of rheumatism twenty-five lemons a day were the dose for a time. As a preventive of illness, however, a half a lemon a day is all that should be taken—that is, if taken every day year in and year out. A half a lemon in a cup of hot water taken an hour before breakfast (without any sugar) will annihilate the darkest of dark brown tastes in one's mouth. If you make a practice of eating more bitter and sour than is good for you, take lemon and hot water every morning.—Maxwell's Talsman.

A sheaved Preacher.
A preacher advocating the support of a charitable object prefaced the circulation of the boxes with this address: "From the great sympathy I have witnessed in your countenances there is only one thing I am afraid of—that some of you may feel inclined to give too much. Now, it is my duty to inform you that justice should always be a prior virtue to generosity; therefore I wish to have it thoroughly understood that no person will think of putting anything into the box who cannot pay his debts."
The result was an overflowing collection.—London Tit-Bits.

According to the Code.
The commanding officer had surprised the young lieutenant and his daughter trying to occupy the same chair. The lieutenant sprang to his feet and saluted. "Sir," he said, "I have the honor to report an engagement at close quarters in which I have been entirely victorious. It now merely remains for you to give your sanction to the terms of surrender."

A Waste of Money.
"But," expostulated Jones, "if you'd only pay me what you owe me I could pay Smith what I owe him."
"I know it," said Robinson. "But Smith wouldn't pay me what he owes me. You and I would merely impoverish ourselves to enrich Smith."—Town Topics.

This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. "Pe-ru-na is the Medicine for the Poor Man."

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 808 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"Peruna has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at 20. I was very thin and run down, but Peruna acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and sometimes need a tonic. Peruna is the medicine for a poor man."

Geo. A. Hughes.

A Congressman Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family.

Hon. Thos. J. Henderson, Member of Congress from Illinois, and Lieutenant in the Union Army for eight years, writes from the Lemon building, Washington, D.C., as follows:

"Peruna has been used in my family with the very best results and I take pleasure in recommending your valuable remedy to my friends as a tonic and an effective cure for catarrh."

---Thos. J. Henderson.

Catarrh assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systemic catarrh is most prevalent. That tired, all worn out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrhal condition of the mucous membranes. Peruna cleanses the mucous membranes and cures the catarrh wherever located.

There are no remedies for catarrh just as good as Peruna. Accept no substitutes. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.
